PSYCHOLOGY

Effective September 1, 2013, the following courses be introduced.

Psychology 3315E - Addictions Theory and Research

This course introduces students to major topics in the prevention and treatment of various forms of addictive behavior. The course also involves a structured community service learning component in which students will help addictions-related organizations meet their identified needs. This work will not necessarily involve direct client contact.

Prerequisites: Psychology 2820E or Psychology 2800E and 2810. Registration is by special permission only and must be obtained from the course instructor in the Spring/Summer before the course begins in the Fall term. Participation in the service learning portion of this course is at the discretion of the Dean.

2 seminar hours, 3 placement hours, 1.0 course

(This course has a service learning component).

Psychology 3724F/G - The Science of Romantic Relationships

This course provides an overview of the field of intimate relationships. Current empirical research is emphasized. Topics include theoretical perspectives on intimate relationships (e.g., social psychological theory, evolutionary and life histories theory), interpersonal attraction, love, sexuality, communication within relationships, and various relationship challenges (conflict, violence, power, loss, etc.).

Antirequisites: Psychology 3790G if taken in 2012/2013

Prerequisites: Psychology 2820E or both Psychology 2800E and 2810
