FACULTY OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES

CLASSICAL STUDIES

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3150F/G Latin Epic be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3150F/G Latin Epic

In this course we will read (in translation) two major Roman poems: Virgil's Aeneid and Ovid's Metamorphoses. We will use them as the basis for discussions on many different topics, including mythology, literary and cultural history, rhetorical devices, and the history of poetry.
Antirequisite(s): former CS3101F/G and CS3904G if taken in 2010.
3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3110F/G Greek Epic be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3110F/G Greek Epic

This course will consider the tradition of epic poetry in Ancient Greece through a reading of the central texts, focusing on the Iliad and the Odyssey. The lectures will seek not only to examine the particular characteristics of each poem, but also to situate these texts within the larger framework of literary and cultural history.
Antirequisite(s): former CS3101F/G and CS3906F if taken in 2009.
3 hours, 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3302E Greek and Roman Warfare be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3302E Greek and Roman Warfare

This course explores why people fight and examines three profound military revolutions in the Near East, Greece and Rome. Topics include the Greco-Persian and the Peloponnesian Wars and the expansion of the Roman Empire. Attention will also be given to the careers of Alexander the Great, Hannibal and Caesar.
Antirequisite(s): CS292E if taken in 2005-06 and CS290E if taken in 2007-08.
3 lecture hours, 1.0 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3410E: Greek History be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus, and that it be added to the prerequisites for CS4410F/G Selected Topics in Greek History as an 'or CS4410F/G'.

(CS 3400E, CS 3410E, or CS 3450E counts as a principal course towards the Honors Specialization in History) A survey of the history of Greece from the Bronze Age to the death of Cleopatra. By analyzing the social and political structures we will explore the reasons for the tremendous success of this civilization. Special emphasis will be given to interpreting and understanding the ancient source material.
Antirequisite(s): the former CS275E or CS3400E.
3 lecture hours, 1.0 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3450E: Roman History be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus, and that it be added to the prerequisites for CS4450F/G Selected Topics in Roman History as an 'or CS4450F/G'.

Classical Studies 3450E Roman History

(CS 3400E, CS 3410E, or CS 3450E counts as a principal course towards the Honors Specialization in History) This course is a survey of Roman history from the founding of the city in the eighth century BCE to the decline of Roman power in the late empire. The course is intended as a mixture of Roman history (chronological narrative) and analysis of primary source material.

Antirequisite(s): the former CS275E or CS3400E.
3 lecture hours, 1.0 course

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3500F/G Greek and Roman Painting be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3500F/G Greek and Roman Painting

A survey of Greek and Roman panel and wall painting, focusing on examples from Classical Athens, royal Macedonian tombs, and frescos of the Late Republic and Early Empire in Rome and Pompeii and Herculaneum. Emphasis will be placed on the social and historical meaning of these panel and wall paintings.

Antirequisite(s): former CS295F if taken in 2007 and CS3903G if taken in 2010.
3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3610F/G Greek Political Thought: Homer to Thucydides be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3610F/G Greek Political Thought: Homer to Thucydides

In this course we examine ancient Greek discourse about the city-state or polis. Readings (in translation) are drawn from Homer, Hesiod, Solon, Herodotus, Aeschylus, and Thucydides. For these works, we will consider the relation between force, rationality, virtue, personal honor, justice, and the political organization of the community.

Antirequisite(s): CS3900E if taken in 2008-09.
3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3151F/G The Age of Augustus be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3151F/G The Age of Augustus

A political, cultural, and literary history of Rome from the assassination of Julius Caesar to the ascension of Tiberius. Readings from secondary sources will complement our study of Augustan coinage, sculpture, painting, monuments, poetry and prose. What can we conclude about the ideology of the age? What made it unique?

Antirequisite(s): CS294G if taken in 2007 and CS293G if taken in 2008.
3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2010, Classical Studies 3612F/G Greek Political Thought: Plato to Aristotle be introduced in the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Main Campus.

Classical Studies 3612F/G Greek Political Thought: Plato to Aristotle

In this course we examine ancient Greek discourse about the city-state or polis. Readings (in translation) include Plato's Republic and Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics and Politics. For these works, we will consider the themes of force, rationality, virtue, personal honor, happiness, justice, and the political organization of the community.
