Extra Information: 3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

English 3200F/G - Feminist Literary Theory

An introduction to critical debates in twentieth-century feminist literary theory. Students will study (1) the diversity of feminist approaches to literature, literary production, the politics of language, questions of genre and subjectivity; and (2) the intersections among feminist literary theories, postcolonialism, Marxism, anti-racist criticism, queer theory, and post-structuralism.

Antirequisite(s): The former English 2240F/G

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3202F/G - National and Global Perspectives on Cultural Studies

Short Title: Global Cultural Studies

An examination of the history, practice, and goals of cultural studies in various national, para-national, and diasporic contexts, with attention to Australia, Britain, Canada, India, Jamaica, Kenya, Nigeria, Singapore, South Africa, Taiwan, Trinidad, and the United States, and to cultural studies contributions to critical and postcolonial theory.

Antirequisite(s): The former English 2260F/G.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3315E Disenchanted Chaucer: Authority and Literature in Medieval England

Short title: Chaucer and Authority

The authority of crown, family, and church, and even the texts that supported those institutions, was questioned in the late medieval period. While introducing the Middle English language, this course will explore how Geoffrey Chaucer and his contemporaries used literature to critique social and political institutions.

Antirequisite(s): English 3116E.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 1.0 course.

English 3316E Love in the Middle Ages

This course explores representations of love and desire in the culture of Europe from the twelfth to the fifteenth centuries. While introducing the Middle English language, we will read romances, dream visions, mystical visions, love letters, and plays in their scientific, historical, and religious contexts.

Antirequisite(s): English 3116E.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 1.0 course.

English 3320F/G Dangerous Desire in the Renaissance

Short title: Desire in the Renaissance

Love and desire are complicated emotions, both today and in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. We will examine the profuse complexity of Renaissance love poetry, by men and women, queer and straight, including writers such as Shakespeare, Wroth, Donne, Barnfield, Spenser, Wyatt, Sidney, Marlowe, Herrick, Carew, Suckling, Marvell, and Philips.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3321F/G Paradise Lost

This half-course will examine such topics as Milton's grand style, Satan, epic heroism (is Paradise Lost an epic or anti-epic?), the nature of innocence, what it means to "fall," and whether there can be a "fortunate fall." Attention will also be paid to seventeenth-century politics, science and astronomy.

Antirequisite(s): English 3224E, 3228F/G.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3331F/G Adapting Shakespeare

Shakespeare invented few of the plots of his plays; instead he used others' writing. Later artists (including stage and film directors, playwrights, and novelists) have likewise drawn on Shakespeare's plays as inspiration. This half-course explores this range of "Shakespearean adaptation" through close study of two or three major plays.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3332F/G Money in Renaissance Drama

Seventeenth-century England saw enormous changes in the distribution of money. Dramatists responded in diverse ways to the social disruption caused by new patterns of wealth and impoverishment. Plays studied on this half-course present cityscapes populated by predators and swindlers, nostalgic evocations of lordly hospitable practices, and meditations on greed.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3337E Shakespeare and the Drama of his Age

Short title: Shakespeare and his Age

A hive of playwrights, among them Shakespeare, produced a wealth of new theatrical writing in Renaissance England. This year-long course groups six plays by Shakespeare with six related plays by writers such as Marlowe, Kyd, Fletcher, Jonson, and Massinger, all of whom, like Shakespeare, flourished in the professional theatres.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 1.0 course.

English 3341F/G Sex, Death, and Philosophy: Libertinism and Eighteenth-Century British Literature

Short title: Libertinism in 18th Cent Brit

The restoration of the monarchy in 1660 ushered in a new and sometimes frightening era of philosophical, social, and sexual freedom. This course explores Libertinism, a subversive doctrine that challenged cultural and sexual norms, through the poems, plays, and prose of the late 17th and early 18th centuries.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3350E The Nineteenth-Century Novel: Austen to Hardy

Short title: Nineteenth-Century Novel

During the nineteenth century novels became the privileged medium in which British society viewed itself as a whole made up of interrelated parts. The period also saw unprecedented change in novelistic technique and in the business of publishing novels. This course will study these and other developments in prose fiction.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 1.0 course.

English 3351F/G Romantic Revolutions

Revolt, radicalism, counter-revolution, reaction, reformation; hope, crisis, peace, war, invention, imagination, catastrophe, wonder, terror. What shadows did revolution cast upon the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries? This course examines a range of texts that reflect Romantic and post-Romantic transformations, upheavals, and reversals in aesthetic, socio-political, scientific, and/or psychological thought and writing.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3361F/G Sherlock Holmes and the Fiction of Detection

Short title: Sherlock Holmes

This course studies the detective figure in nineteenth-century literature and culture. Possible topics include: the science of deduction; evidence and forensic practices; panopticism and the society of surveillance; the role of the detective in policing boundaries or race, class, and gender. May also include later film and tv adaptations.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3370F/G Modernism and the Birth of the Avant-Garde

Short title: Modernism and the Avant-Garde

Fascinated by innovation and revolution, modernism is obsessed with the new, celebrating the speed, alienation, and fragmentation of modernity. Yet it is also steeped in nostalgia, in a world dashed by modernity itself. This course offers a range of texts that explore modernist re-imaginings of art, politics, psychology and identity.

Antirequisite(s): The former English 3554E.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3371F/G Contemporary Experimental LiteratureShort title: Contemp. Experimental Lit.

Several contemporary poets and fiction writers express a profound dissatisfaction with traditional literary genres, preferring to focus on radical innovations in technique. This course examines a range of texts that offer a more clinical approach to writing, inspired by such structures as dreams, arbitrary constraints, and game theory.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3372F/G Drama of the Irish Literary RevivalShort title: Drama of Irish Lit. Revival

The Abbey Theatre in Dublin, site of new dramatic forms as well as political rioting, was at the centre of the Irish Literary Revival of the early twentieth century. This course examines the beginnings of the theatre in 1904 and explores the function of drama within the Irish literary tradition.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3470F/G American Cult Classics

This course explores movements or genres with passionate followings and transgressive or countercultural themes. How did these cult traditions emerge and how can we explain their appeal? Topics may include religious or illicit countercultures, American gothic fiction, Beat literature, hard-boiled detective fiction, and sci fi.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3480F/G Reading America Now

How does the American literary imagination engage contemporary issues? This course approaches recent American fiction and poetry to explore national identity, sexual and racial difference, social and economic injustice, and the significance of media technology. Readings may be accompanied by studies of contemporary visual culture and music.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3571F/G Be/Longing: Global Literature in CanadaShort title: Global Literature in Canada

Where is “here” for writers of migrant and diasporic heritages living in Canada? How does writing from “elsewhere” reshape collective understanding? These and other questions will be studied in vibrant and provocative works by such writers as Dionne Brand, Anita Rau Badami, Rawi Hage, Michael Ondaatje, and Kim Thuy.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3580F/G Canadian Literature: Creativity and the LocalShort title: Local Canadian Creativity

This course explores the literary cultures of Southwestern Ontario, examining the ways local writing accesses the public, builds communities, relates people to their environment, and connects local, national, and transnational networks. Students develop critical, creative, and experiential perspectives and employ community engaged learning to develop course concepts beyond the classroom.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3670F/G Global Indigenous Literatures

This course engages with the cultures of storytelling and literary production of different Indigenous peoples across the globe. In reading this literature with attention to the distinct cultures, territories, and histories of particular Indigenous nations, this course will also consider what unites Indigenous peoples on an international level.

Prerequisite(s): At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or 1042E or both of English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.
Extra Information: 3 hours, 0.5 course.

English 3680F/G - First Nations Literatures

FACULTY OF SOCIAL SCIENCE

ANTHROPOLOGY

Effective September 1, 2017, the following course be introduced.

Anthropology 2238A/B Reading Life and Death through the Human BodyShort title: Reading Life & Death

While alive our bodily tissues store a tremendous amount of information. These clues can be used to tell a lot about a person's life and death. This information is explored in three contexts: Living Individuals, Recently Deceased Individuals (focus on forensic applications), and Older Deceased Individuals (focus on archaeological applications).

Prerequisite(s): Any first-year Social Science, Health Sciences, or Science course.

Extra Information: 3.0 hours 0.5 course.

Effective September 1, 2017, the following courses be revised.

Anthropology 2151A/B - Language, Gender and Sexuality

Extra Information: ~~3 hours~~ 2 lecture hours, 1 tutorial hour, 0.5 course.

Anthropology 2152A/B - Languages in Canada

Extra Information: ~~3 hours~~ 2 lecture hours, 1 tutorial hour, 0.5 course.

Anthropology 2201F/G Urban Thinking: Cultural Explorations of Towns and Cities - Urban Anthropology

~~An ethnographic and social-ecological approach to towns and cities examining small and large urban and peri-urban sites as complex cultural and political systems. Topics such as urban cultures, space and power, sustainability, and governance, among others, will be explored from a critical cross-cultural and historical perspective.~~

Today, with over half the world population living in cities, urban field sites have become the norm for many anthropologists. Through case studies, this course introduces key topics, debates, and insights associated with urban anthropology and invites reflection on the contributions anthropology can make to urban studies.

Anthropology 2251F/G - Language, Gender and Sexuality

PSYCHOLOGY

Effective September 1, 2017, the following course be withdrawn.

Psychology 2062A/B - Educational Psychology

Effective September 1, 2017, the following courses be introduced.

Psychology 2074A/B Psychology of Gender

Being born into one gender category and not another has a profound impact on how individuals are treated, what they expect of themselves, what others expect of them, and how they lead and experience their lives. We examine gender across a variety of domains from the perspective of psychological science.

Extra Information: 3 lecture hours; 0.5 course.

Psychology 3445F/G – Social Development

Human survival and reproduction depends on the ability to form and maintain social relationships with others. This course reviews biological, cognitive, social, and contextual processes that enable human children to “get along” with others, and processes associated with social maladaptation. Topics include attachment, emotion regulation, aggression, prosocial behavior, and gender.
